

TRIADIC STRATEGIES

in Early Intervention

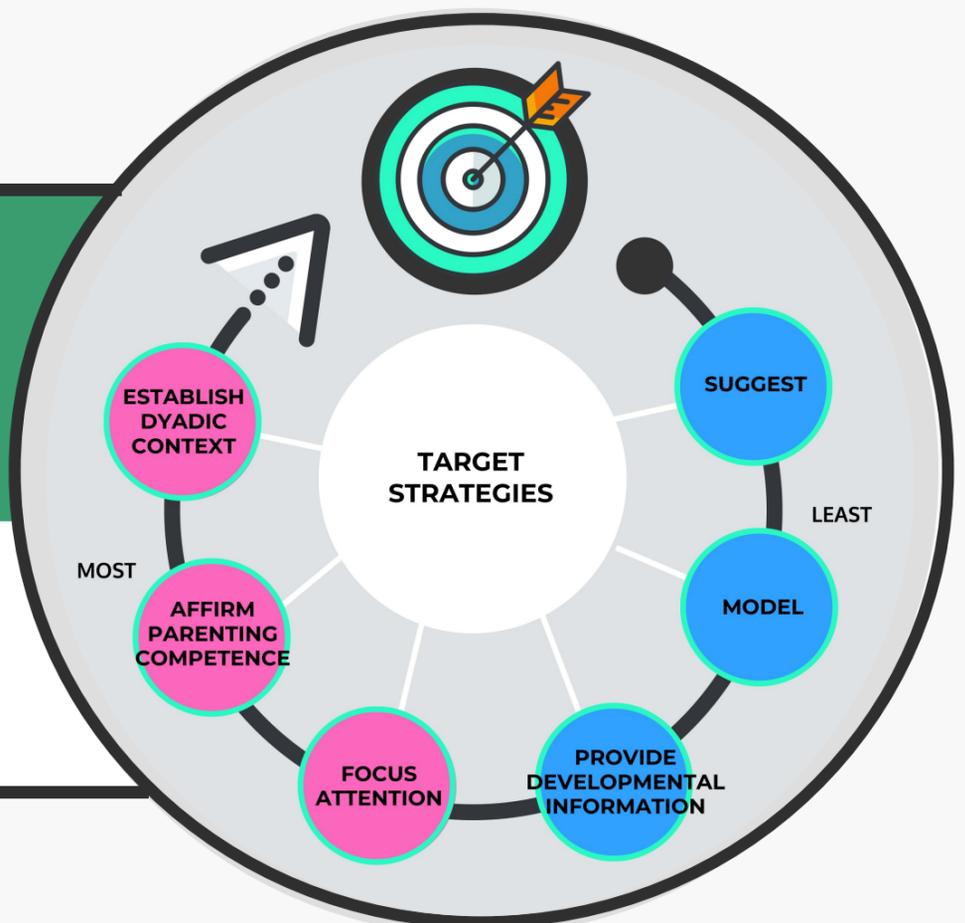

The Intervention Triad

- Triadic strategies are used by early interventionists to promote parent-child interaction.
- The role of the early interventionist is to recognize and expand on the caregiver's strengths to promote confidence and competence.

What Strategies Do You Use During Home Visits?

-Be wary of the "model" and "suggest" strategies, which are the most directive strategies. These strategies can have negative consequences.

REFLECTION: PUTTING IT INTO PRACTICE

Early Interventionists: Choose one family to use the triadic strategies with over the next month.

- What strategies worked best for you with the family?
- How did using the strategies change your intervention?

Service Coordinators: Did you set the stage for early intervention by sharing with the family that the focus of early intervention is about supporting caregivers in their everyday activities?

Caregivers: Did you feel the primary focus of your most recent visit was helping you make minor adjustments to your routines?

Click to view Triadic Strategies Video Presentation: <https://vimeo.com/274376528>